25-2534	Upper 50s, despite all the sunshine that we will stay dry through Friday Saturday. Some isolated scattered showers possible by Sunday, and then to the start of next week. There's nothing we wash out if they have additional habits of rain falling temperature. We climbing the start winter on Sunday. It will not feel like it with highs in the upper 60s near 70°. And that will be the story for Christmas. Eve and Christmas Day milling, thank you, Gracie. Cases of measles in this country keeps rising today. The state of North Carolina said he confirmed a case of measles and a person who traveled through the busy Raleigh due airport last week. The cases are mainly impacting unvaccinated children with the most recent outbreak in South Carolina. Skyler, Henry has the latest from green book. Mobile health units have been offering free measles vaccines across South Carolina. Since October an effort to stem a growing outbreak. That's already affected. 135 people and left 168 others in quarantine in the epicenter. Spartanburg, vaccination rates are among the lowest in the state. Only 90% of students in the county have met school vaccination requirements. According to the state health department, their fearful, particularly parents with young children Dr. Robin Lacroix, a pediatric infectious disease specialist, and she worries the disease could spread even further as families gather for the holidays. The world is such a small files and because this virus is so contagious to people who don't have. Immunity that it's very easily spread. The CDC has shocked nearly 2000 confirmed cases across 43 states. This year, the most on record. Since the disease was declared eradicated more than 2 decades ago. The people have died, so then now does the skip better? The way that we are able to control these backs have provenances, is for you high levels of perturbations, the highest level for the first time in more than 20 years. The US is on the verge of losing its measles. Elimination status due to a vaccination lag affect all across the country. And because of outbreaks like the one here in South Carolina, continuing to spread Skyler, H CBS News Greenville, South Carolina, there's a new warning about a highly contagious stomach virus. That is spreading across the country. Help officials say cases of norovirus, commonly known as the stomach flu.	aanderson@jacksonms.gov	12/18/2025 06:50:23 PM		Sonora Trotter
